Chance for the Navy Glorious, Useful Service When Unions Quarrel The "Veiled Chimp"

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1925, by the Star Company.

ONE OF OUR dirigibles will go to Minnesota to please hardy Scandinavians living there. Why not send the Shenandoah to Spitzbergen and on toward the Pole to save the brave Norwegians and the courageous young American, Ellsworth, now lost in the Arctic wastes?

THIS IS a good time for hunting lost people in the Arctic. You have twenty-four hours of daylight every day. The distance is only 600 miles from Spitzbergen to the North Pole. And the round trip would be no farther than going from Lakehurst to Bermuda and back. The trip would be less dangerous for the Shenandoah and her crew than going from Lakehurst to Minneapolis and return.

IT IS NOT cold in the Arctic at this season. The temperature rarely falls below freezing. At Spitzbergen it averages 35 degrees in July. Amundsen and his men, if their planes are down, are now traveling up to their knees in fresh water slush. Occasionally they may have to swim across open "lanes" in the ice of the Arctic Ocean, which is about seven feet thick and breaks up in Summer.

SHENANDOAH, might save Amundsen with no greater danger to her crew than would be incurred on the round trip to Minneapolis. If she sighted the explorers, now facing death, she could save them easily without landing. Dropping close to the ground, within one hundred or two hundred feet, she could let down a rope with a "bo'sun's chair" or basket at the end of it, take the men up one at a time and bring them back.

IF THE MEN were not found on the straight line from Spitzbergen to the Pole, Shenandoah might find them struggling to reach North Greenland, two hundred miles nearer the Pole than Spitzbergen.

IT IS a tradition with our navy to send out rescue parties in search of lost explorers. If the Shenandoah could find Amundsen and his plucky crew, that would be a magnificent feat, worthy of the American navy, and worth some risk—better worth it than any mere Arctic jaunt.

AS FOR RISKING the lives of men in the navy, the government is doing that already when it sends three government planes, with crews from the navy, to help a private individual, Mr. MacMillan, in his North Pole expedition.

IT IS a good thing to help Mr. MacMillan, giving him the glory, if he accomplishes anything, by risking the lives of American aviators.

It would be much better for the United States to let Shenandoah save the Amundsen expedition and give the glory to the navy.

BUILDING IS tied up, plasterers are called out, work and wages stop. Why? Is it because employers refuse decent hours, fair wages?

No, employers have nothing to do with it. Plasterers and bricklayers are unable to agree on certain disputes between two unions.

So they stop work, causing loss to third parties not concerned in their union quarrels, and stop their own wages, in the busy Summer season.

THIS IS BAD for union labor, and, what is worse, it shows lack of ordinary intelligence. The only real power is public opinion, and labor should not disregard it. Suppose bankers and master builders got in a quarrel and locked out their masons, plasterers and bricklayers, what would the unions say? What would public opinion say

TOTS AND MOTHER SAVED IN FIRE

Heroic work on the part of Edward H. Mulvey, a fireman off duty, and Thomas Grimes saved little Olivette Goulet, aged four, shown above, and her mother and baby brother, Maurice, when flames menaced their home, No. 138 West Ninth street, South Boston, early today. Mrs. Goulet, her husband, Charles; son Roger, aged seven, and three guests were asleep when Mulvey and Grimes aroused them and carried them from the burning building.

3 HURT, TWO DYING, TWO OTHERS VANISH AFTER AUTO PLUNGE

On the Acton road in Chelmsford, early today, a big touring car occupied by five residents of Greater Boston swerved from the highway on Dupee's Hill, bowled over a milepost, and went hurtling down a twenty-foot embankment.

Two girls and a man were seriously injured. Two of the three probably will die.

The other two occupants of the machine disappeared, after summoning physicians and Chelmsford police by telephone from a farmhouse nearby.

The injured:

Miss Julia Casey, twenty years old, No. 27 Litchfield street, Brighton.

Fred Burke, thirty-four, No. 58 Green street, Allston.

Miss Kitty McDonald, twenty-four, No. 22 Putnam street, Cambridge.

Burke and Miss Casey have little

2 Elephants Die on Ship Bound for Boston

Halifax, N. S., June 12 (I.N.S.)—Two elephants died and were buried at sea, 150 monkeys passed away to the monkey heaven, and 500 birds escaped to a tropical island.

Outside of these events the voyage of the steamship Sandol Hall from India to this port bound for Boston was very ordinary.

After discharging a tea cargo here, the ship will proceed to Boston to turn over a collection of animals and birds to a circus owner there.

SHOT SELF, HE INSISTS, AFTER GIRL'S SUICIDE

The first coherent story of what happened in Glen road woods, Wellesley, when 15-years-old Priscilla Amidon was shot to death and Sterling Mills, her schoolboy sweetheart, wounded, was told by the youth in Newton Hospital today.

The story was told to State Detective Michael Fleming and Chief of Police Harry N. Kingsbury of Wellesley, in the presence of a stenographer from the office of District Attorney Winfield Wilbur of Norfolk County.

After listening to the boy's account of the shooting, the authorities were said to be more baffled than at any time since young Mills, with blood streaming from a wound in his forehead, was picked up on the roadside.

While exact wording of the statement was not made public pending a report to Assistant District Attorney Dudley R. Ranney, who is in charge of the case, the authorities allowed it to be known that young Mills declared that Miss Amidon shot herself.

He said also that after she had inflicted a fatal wound on herself, he took the revolver and sent a bullet crashing into his own head.

He added, however, that he tested the gun by firing a shot into a tree before his sweetheart took her own life.

The authorities began a search for the tree this afternoon as part of their checking up of his story.

DRAG 8 FROM BURNING SOUTH BOSTON HOME

Eight persons, including three children, were rescued when fire of undetermined origin broke out early today in the grocery store of William Hoskins at No. 138 West Ninth street, South Boston.

They were carried out of an upstairs tenement by Fireman Edward H. Mulvey, who lives across the street and who gave the alarm, and Thomas Grimes of No. 147 West Ninth street.

Those rescued were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Goulet, who occupied the tenement; their children, Roger, seven years old, convalescing from scarlet fever; Olivette, four years, and Maurice, sixteen months; Mrs. Olivine Piche, Mrs. Florida Magnan and Joseph Piche.

The last three are residents of Montreal, Canada, who are visiting the Goulets.

RUSH TROOPS TO CAPE BRETON STRIKE ZONE

Sydney, N. S., June 12 (I.N.S.)—As a special train of twelve cars, carrying 500 Dominion troops and a large squad of provincial police, hurried from Halifax toward the Cape Breton coal strike area today reports of looting and fires at New Waterford, the storm centre, were received here.

As an aftermath of an all-day battle between strikers and police employed by the British Empire Steel Corporation, in which one man was killed and several wounded, looting of corporation stores began and several fires were reported from the corporation's mining properties.

The trouble at New Waterford started when corporation officials and company police attempted to start up operations at the New Waterford power station, which generates power for the various mines

COOLIDGE, JR., GOES TO SEE MISS TRUMBULL

New York, June 12 (A.P.)—A Hartford dispatch to today's New York Times says:

"John Coolidge, the President's son, is the guest of Governor Jonathan Trumbull, of Connecticut. He has been at the Governor's home in Plainville for three days.

"The President's son met Jean Trumbull, the Governor's daughter, on the way to the presidential inauguration on March 4, when the governor's party and young Coolidge travelled in the same Pullman car.

"Miss Trumbull is a student at Mount Holyoke, while Coolidge is an undergraduate at Amherst only a few miles distant. The young people have seen each other several times since the inauguration."

Hartford, Ct., June 12 (A.P.)—John Coolidge left Plainville today for a visit at Yale University and planned to spend most of the day in New Haven in company with Governor Trumbull, Miss Trumbull, and Major Talbot O. Freeman of the Governor's staff.

The President's son will spend tonight at the Governor's home in Plainville and tomorrow he will return to Amherst College to attend the commencement festivities.

YALE FLIER FINED $25 FOR BREAKING "AIR LAWS"

New Haven, June 12 (A.P.)—Admitting he flew in that vicinity under the 2,000-foot altitude, but denying he flew in his airplane over the stands on Yale Field, May 23, during the Yale-Princeton freshman baseball game, Thomas B. Sweeney, Jr., Yale junior, of Washington, D. C., was fined $25 for a violation of the Connecticut aviation law today.

TWO-ALARM BLAZE IN SOMERVILLE

A two-alarm fire this afternoon destroyed the two-story building of the Colonial Laundry Supply Company and the one and one-half-story plant of Underhill Bros., edge tool makers, on Winthrop avenue, Somerville. $369 THUG'S LOOT; SLUGS 'GAS' DEALER

A bold thug slugged Oliver A. Bowers, manager of the Jenney gas-oline station at No. 200 Congress street, into unconsciousness today and fled with $369, yesterday's receipts.

The attack was made as Bowers was opening the filling station for business. He was passing through the areaway and opened a door at the end. As he did so, a man stepped from behind his place of concealment, Bowers saw an arm descend, then he became insensible.

When he had recovered consciousness he discovered a bag containing the $369 was missing.

"AFTER SHE SHOT HERSELF, I TRIED TO DIE," MILLS SAYS

BOY SIGNS SUICIDE STORY

The high schoolboy told the authorities that he had intended leaving home because his father had upbraided him for staying out nights, and had warned him that he must be in at 9 o'clock. Mills said he had intended to go to work on a Natick farm, and had so informed the principal of the high school.

He said he went to Priscilla Amidon's home the night before the shooting, during the absence of her parents. He told how the gun was procured, but it could not be learned whether the boy or girl took the weapon, which was the property of Mr. Amidon.

According to young Mills, the tryst in the woods was arranged by the couple that night, and they met after Miss Amidon got out of school the next afternoon.

INQUEST LIKELY.

As a result of his story it was stated there would probably be an inquest, in an attempt to straighten out the problem that is puzzling the authorities.

They cannot understand how the girl, being right-handed, could have fired a bullet straight into her head on the left side, and leave no powder marks.

Furthermore it was said that shots were fired in rapid succession, which would seem to preclude the possibility of the gun having changed hands.

It has been definitely established that Mills was shot but once. What was thought to be a second bullet was a split fragment of the first. There is still one bullet to be accounted for.

Miss Amidon was shot only once. If the missing bullet can be found, its location may have a vital bearing on future events in the baffling case.

SEE PIN AS CLEW.

The Wellesley police were making much today of the location of a gold pin, admittedly Miss Amidon's which was found about one-and-half feet from the spot where her body lay.

Some more emphatic sleuths said its position indicated that she was shot while sitting down. Also, they said, the revolver lay by her right hand when she was found, although she was shot in the left side of the head.

Prosecutor Rainey expressed himself today as not satisfied with the progress of the investigation.

"There are certain phases of this case with which we are not at all satisfied," said the assistant district attorney in his statement. "We have yet to question two or three more persons directly concerned in the case. From what we have learned thus far we cannot at all state as to which of the two young persons fired the shots."

Asked as to what had been the finding of Medical Examiner West after his autopsy on the girl's body, Mr. Rainey said:

"Medical Examiner West has made no final decision as yet. He has informed us of what he has been able to learn thus far. I do not wish to state what those facts were as yet, but I will say that whatever the report of the medical examiner may be, whether murder or suicide, our investigation will go on until we have cleared all doubts in our mind concerning the case."

Assistant District Attorney Rainey went into conference with Chief Kingsbury and State Officer Fleming immediately after Kingsbury, Fleming and Dr. West had gone to the scene of the shooting in Glen road woods and had searched for a third bullet, which was missing from the revolver and which had not as yet been accounted for.

Physicians at the Newton Hospital declare that young Mills has a good chance for recovery, but that if he did recover he would probably be permanently injured.

Assistant District Attorney Rainey, in his statement to the Boston Evening American, scored the Wellesley authorities for having failed to inform the District Attorney's office of the shooting until the morning after the tragedy had occurred. He also declared it "very unusual" that Mills had not been placed technically under arrest.

GUN PROVES MYSTERY.

All of the loose ends of the story were neced together by Dr. West, State Officer Fleming and Chief Kingsbury. Monday evening, the night before the tragedy, Mr. and Mrs. Amidon, parents of the dead girl, attended a wedding anniversary celebration in Boston. Sterling Mills visited Priscilla Amidon at her home.

It is known that he had access to Mr. Amidon's room where the revolver was kept. Whether he took the revolver from the father's room together with a box of cartridges found in the woods or whether Priscilla Amidon took the weapon and brought it to the woods is an unanswered question.

The strongest point to prove the suicide of the girl was learned when Chief of Police Kingsbury said there were powder marks on the girl's left temple, below the bullet hole, leading the police to believe that she fired the shot with her right hand, pointing the weapon up slightly.

chance of recovery, according to physicians. Miss McDonald's injuries are not so serious. All three are at St. John's Hospital, Lowell.

The police are making a careful investigation of the peculiar accident, but have been aided very little to date by the three victims now in hospital.

A search is being made for the two persons who fled after telephoning for help. The police do not even know whether the missing two are men or women.

The farmer whose telephone was used has been of little assistance to Motorcycle Officers D. Adams and Clarence Dane of Chelmsford, who are making the investigation.

Adams and Dane, however, say that from the incoherent admissions of the injured and the condition of the wrecked car, as well as the tire prints on the embankment's edge, they are sure the car was being driven at a fast rate of speed.

TUNING UP FOR PRIZE FLIGHT

Major Charles H. Wooley, commanding officer of the 26th Division Air Service, testing airplane to be used in the Boston Evening American's prize flight. Below, at left, Mrs. Benjamin F. Pitman, and at right, Mrs. S. H. Wolcott, society women, who will serve as hostesses.

NOTED FLIERS PRAISE AIR CONTEST

Two more aviators, whose exploits in the air have brought them renown, strongly endorse the Boston Evening American's Prize Air Flight Contest next Wednesday. This contest, in which twelve officers of the Massachusetts National Guard will compete for prizes totaling $500, offered by this newspaper, is to be one of the features of the 136th anniversary celebration of Bunker Hill Day.

Tentative plans made by the committee of National Guard officers in charge of the flight details call for the "hop off" of the first plane at 9 a. m. next Wednesday. The other five planes will probably be dispatched at half hour intervals thereafter. The mission of each plane will require two hours actual flying.

Among the many prominent Boston women who will serve as patronesses are Mrs. Gordon Prince, whose husband served with such distinction in Italy as an aviator during the World War, Mrs. Charles H. Moss, Jr., Mrs. Thomas G. Frothingham, Mrs. A. E. Jones, Mrs. Benjamin F. Pitman and Mrs. S. Huntington Wolcott.

The aviators are Lieutenant Julian S. Dexter of Boston and Walter H. Brookins of Dayton, O.

Lieutenant Dexter is a graduate of Yale University and served with distinction in France with the United States Air Forces. He is now attached to the 26th Division Air Forces.

Mr. Brookins is one of the pioneer aviators of this country, being the first man to fly over Boston, some seven years ago, after being taught by Orville Wright. He took part in the first aviation meet at Squantum and participated in the first flight at night. In 1910 he held the world's altitude record. Here is what Mr. Brookins says:

By WALTER R. BROOKINS.

The Prize Flight Contest of the Boston Evening American is a fine undertaking. It should stimulate public interest in aviation. What this country needs now is enough airplanes to properly defend it in case of invasion from Europe.

One of the best things a newspaper can do today is to help point out defects to the people so that the United States may be prepared if war comes. The Boston Evening American is rendering a real patriotic service to the country in sponsoring next week's prize flight, for it will thereby help awaken public interest.

The statement of Lieutenant Dexter follows:

By LIEUT. JULIAN S. DEXTER, 26th Division Air Service

The "sealed orders" flight conducted under the auspices of the Boston Evening American has aroused much enthusiasm in those who are to take part in the contest.

The fact that the orders are to be delivered to the pilots and observers just a few moments before "taking off" and are to be opened and studied in the air before the course can be set and the mission to be performed studied and the results accomplished, will demonstrate just how efficiently the 26th Division Air Service can function in time of emergency.

The Boston Evening American, by sponsoring this flight, is doing a valuable service for aviation.

MINE RIOTS

of the steel corporation. The strikers came through victorious and took full possession of the town.

The Cape Breton colliery strike now involves 12,000 coal miners. They quit when the steel corporation closed several collieries and suspended store credits to 3,000 workers. A 19 per cent. wage cut and concessions in working conditions were the terms offered by the corporation.

H. S. McCann, general manager of the Dominion Coal Company, who was in the power station at New Waterford when it was stormed and captured by a mob of strikers, is safe, it was learned today. He had been missing several hours.

Thousands of striking miners are World War veterans. In many communities these veterans are preparing to battle with the troops.

The troop train carries full machine gun equipment. The soldiers have steel helmets and machine guns and are prepared for an extensive field campaign, but with the coal spread over such a wide area reenforcements may be required.

Reports received from New Aberdeen, early today, were that rioting was prevalent there. New Aberdeen is a suburb of Glace Bay.

Only the pleadings of a Catholic priest, the Rev. Father Nicholson, saved the lives of a dozen of the policemen in the New Waterford riot. The infuriated mob was ready to lynch and shoot their prisoners when the priest addressed them. He finally gained control of the mob for a moment and the police were released and fled.

Berlin-Mackay Match in Hands of Pope?

FROM the various and more or less contradictory statements regarding the reported engagement of Irving Berlin, song writer, and Miss Ellin Mackay, daughter of Clarence H. Mackay, millionaire Postal Telegraph-Cable Company head, the following stand out today:

One was the statement of Mr. Mackay that, "His Holiness Pope Pius has never sanctioned and has never been asked to sanction a marriage between any daughter of mine and the person (Berlin) referred to."

Another was the following International News Service dispatch from Rome: "It was officially confirmed at the Vatican today that a request has been made to Pope Pius XI. for a special dispensation to allow the marriage of Miss Ellin Mackay . . . and Irving Berlin, writer of American songs. The request is understood to have been supported by Cardinal Hayes of New York."

The third was a statement contained in a Boston morning newspaper: "A business associate of Mr. Mackay said the couple apparently were infatuated with each other and that Mr. Mackay was trying to persuade his daughter that the match would be a mesalliance."

HALT U. S. SHIP IN FISH NET

By ED MILLETT.

Despite the Coast Guard blockade thrown along the Atlantic coast, rum is still being run freely and easily into land and the throats of the thirsty.

The statement is made from personal observation during a trip to Rum Row, off Stellwagen Bank, aboard one of the fastest rum-running boats plying from the anchored casts to the night landing places on the North Shore.

On the trip, 200 cases of alcohol, each case containing six gallons, was carried from the schooner, one of a dozen craft making up the present Rum Row.

The alcohol was landed near Gloucester and taken by trucks to Somerville, after a fast flight through fog overhanging the ocean, in the face of many shots from Coast Guard craft, that ended when the rum running skipper fed over the side a large area of old fish net, which became tangled in the propeller of the pursuing boat.

INVITED TO ROW.

Quite by accident the writer's trip to Rum Row and back to land came about. Making a daily round of the Gloucester waterfront, I had paused to watch some rum runners working on one of the two 100-horsepower Liberty motors in their 35-foot grey-hulled craft.

The skipper looked up and called, barely civil:

"Hello! Want to go with us?"

But when I assented he "crawfished," attempting to laugh off the offer. I persisted and called him a welcher, however, and finally he made up his mind to take me, but with a warning that my risk was my own.

Shortly after 6 p. m. we poked our nose out of Harbor Cove, past Base No. 7 of the Coast Guard, where several speedy picket boats swung at anchor, past Cape Ann and out into the open water.

Then behind us we glimpsed in the swirling haze the dark shape of a picket boat in pursuit.

"Here's where the game starts, feller!" sung out the skipper, and whirled the wheel. The motors roared, the bow climbed many degrees out of the water, until I thought the dory lashed on the deck astern would slide into the green seas.

Losing the pursuer was easy in the fog with a light boat, but it was just one hour after leaving the cove that another black shadow bulked out of the fog and the skipper slipped along its side.

"What's your name?" he shouted, and the answer came back, "The W. R. Eastwood of Lunenburg."

"We want the ——"

"Keep going down the line and you'll find her. Don't load too heavy; the bulls are out tonight," came the advice.

"STUFF" PUT ABOARD.

We passed two other ships and came in the Beatrice, where the skipper evidently had made arrangements, for, someone sang out through the dusk that his "stuff" was ready. The "stuff" proved to be 200 cases plainly marked "Belgian Alcohol." It was stowed safely away and then we pushed off again.

"This stuff goes to Scituate," said the skipper, as he opened his engines under the load.

But we never reached Scituate, for the reason that lying out in the fog was another rum-hunting craft, waiting for us to start ashore with our load.

A shot sang through the murk and then a hail: "Heave to!"

"Heave to h—l," growled the skipper and swung in a broad circle. But the hunter was not lost so easily as the first, and another shot cracked in the closing night and another and another.

Every swing of our boat in the protecting dark appeared to be smelled out instantly by the Coast Guard craft and the bullets were zipping uncomfortably near.

"Get the nets out, Mac," ordered the skipper calmly and the man Mac broke out great areas of old fish nets from a tub in which they were kept.

Over the side they were spread to trail away behind, their supporting corks bobbing on the rolling seas.

POPE PLANS TO CALL COUNCIL

Rome, June 12 (A.P.).—The newspaper Sereno today said it is reported in well-informed Vatican circles that the Pope intends to convoke an ecumenical council in Rome during the latter part of the present Holy Year.

All bishops of the Catholic world would attend such a council.

The last ecumenical council was held in 1869 under the pontificate of Pius IX. The report that another council may be called this year, probably to continue through out 1926 and perhaps into 1927, caused great interest here.

Only nineteen ecumenical councils have been held. The first was in Nicaea, Asia Minor, in 325 A. D. The last, which ended in July, 1870, was not concluded because of the Franco-Prussian war and the occupation of Rome by Italian troops after disturbances then harassing Italy.

It has been reported that no hall within the Vatican is large enough to accommodate all those who would attend the conference, and that it might be possible to hold the meeting outside the Vatican confines. A difficulty to that suggestion, it is pointed out, is that the presence of the Pope is necessary at an ecumenical council, and that the Popes, since the loss of temporal power, have not left the Vatican.

Y. M. C. A. ELECTS THREE TO BOARD OF DIRECTORS

The Boston Young Men's Christian Association elected three new directors and re-elected three others at its annual meeting.

Benjamin Gurnsey and Alfred H. Avery were elected for three-year terms, and Franklin W. Ganss for a term ending in June, 1926. Francis P. Luce, Thomas H. Russell and Sabin P. Sanger were re-elected for three years.

The annual session was followed by memorial services held for Miner R. Deming, who was general secretary from 1875 to 1887, and for William MacDonald, who was assistant treasurer from 1883 until his death a few weeks ago.

about the outrageous punishment of innocent workers because of rich men's quarrels?

THE MONKEY trial is well started in the newspapers, especially among comic writers. One writer, Mr. "Bugs" Baer, describes the appearance in court of the "Beautiful Veiled Chimp."

"Chimp" is a lady chimpanzee, of course.

There will be "reports by John Daniel," the educated gorilla, and juries of assorted monkeys will be shown weighing the evidence.

The ignorance and fanaticism that fear and hate science will be made thoroughly ridiculous before the trial ends.

The State of Tennessee, however, is not disturbed. Strong in its righteousness, it adopts a new text book on biology denying that animals, via evolution, have produced human beings.

AS A MATTER of fact, neither Mr. Darwin nor anybody else knows anything about the exact descent of the human race. Darwin never said that men are descendants of monkeys. Neither did he say that a rib was taken from the first man, made into a woman, and the human race thus started.

The serious feature of the already famous monkey trial is the fact that it shows hatred of science, fear of knowledge, and a will to enslave men's minds in the name of religion.

"CHINESE ATTACK U. S. war vessel," that and similar headlines make you wonder exactly what U. S. diplomacy is doing far away in the East. The other day our warships accompanied Japanese ships on a trip, to quiet Chinese unrest. Let us hope that we are showing a reasonable desire to mind our own business and let the Chinese mind theirs.

READ THE NEWS from Northern Africa, where the Riffs are fighting desperately and most courageously against the combined power of France and Spain. The Spanish and French will win, but they will lose many men and spend many dollars. They must do it, because their interests in North Africa are vital. We have no interests of such importance in China.

And we should remember that when we send fighting ships to Chinese ports and land marines, and start our machine guns popping, the Chinese have a right to feel exactly as we should feel if the Chinese landed soldiers in New Jersey or California and started their machine guns going.

HUNT FOR FIVE AFTER FIRE ON BOAT

ure boat Crystal, forcing thirty-two persons, including the crew, to leap overboard while on a pleasure cruise about eight miles off Atlantic City.

The explosion is attributed to a cigarette end thrown down a hatchway.

The twenty-seven were all taken to hospitals and treated for burns and submersion. They had been afloat an hour before a coast guard cutter picked up sixteen. A "dry mayor" boat rescued eleven others.

Curtis Lyle, one of those aboard the ill-fated boat told this story:

"Around 8:30 o'clock we all had a fine meal and most of the party had found seats on the top deck, and were playing ukes and singing, having a good time. There were six of us in a cabin slightly below the top deck. We were smoking and chatting.

"Some one tossed the butt of a cigarette through a small hatchway into a room where, I think, the gasoline tanks were. I am not sure of this, but apparently I'm right, for the gas fumes must have caused the explosion.

"There was a terrific blast—like a crack of thunder banging right into your ears. The boat seemed to be heaved right up off the sea. The boat rolled from side to side—long, sickening rolls that threw us around—and in a moment when we got to our feet I found myself on the top deck. I must have been blown out of the cabin. The water was splashing around the decks. We were stunned. The boat gave an awful lurch, and I saw two of the lifeboats go spinning into the ocean. The next thing I knew most of us were floundering around in the water, cut and shocked."

TO TRY DEVENS SOLDIER IN SLAYING

Devens, against Private Julian Oullette of the Fifth Infantry, who shot and killed Fred Townsend, an escaping prisoner.

A thorough investigation will be made and it was stated at Army Base headquarters, at least two other soldiers, Ralph A. MacLeod and Andrew Hutchins, will be ordered to testify at a general court-martial, if army officers will sit in judgment on Oullette.

Army officers explained today that the charge of manslaughter had to be lodged under the circumstances and that if nothing unforeseen develops in the investigation, the trial is intended to exonerate Oullette rather than to punish him. Meanwhile Oullette is held under guard at Devens.

The date for the court-martial has not been fixed. Several courts are sitting continuously at various places in the corps area, and any of these may try Oullette, or a special court may be appointed, in which case trial will probably be held at the Army Base, South Boston.

Townsend was instantly killed by a bullet fired by Oullette from his service .45 calibre revolver after it is alleged the prisoner was ordered three times to halt. Both MacLeod and Hutchins and Oullette were detailed as a searching party to find him.

DONALD LOWRIE TELLS WHY HE IS DYING IN PRISON HOSPITAL

Amazing Story of a Man's Struggle Against Temptations That Pulled Him Down to Die in a Cell

CHAPTER XLV.

IT was during the Spring of 1915 that Osborne, at the request of Governor Whitman, made a trip of inspection over two proposed sites for a new State prison, one known as Wingdale, the other as Beekman, both located in the Westchester district. An appropriation of considerable size had been made some years before to buy and build on the Wingdale site. An architect named Beardsley had been paid more than $100,000, and one of his claims for $60,000 had been characterized by a former attorney general as "outrageous and unconscionable upon its face."

In a special message to the Legislature in 1912, Governor Dix stated that to spend $4,000,000 to build a prison on the edge of a swamp would be bad enough under any circumstances, but to do so in defiance of an uncontroverted adverse report on the site such as had been submitted to the Legislature by a disinterested committee would be a "manifest outrage upon the rights of the taxpayers."

Property Purchased by Group of Politicians

The inside facts concerning the Wingdale site, as nearly as I could learn them, were that a group of politicians had purchased the property adjacent to the proposed prison, after considerable money had been expended on poorly constructed and incomplete foundations, speculating that the State would later have to enlarge the plant, and that their holdings would be available accordingly, and could be sold at an exorbitant figure.

This group was, of course, working desperately to force continuation of the work on that site. It was almost inconceivable that group of politicians should foist a swamp upon the State of New York, where thousands of future prisoners would be ruined in health. I thought of those future prisoners as, at that moment, innocent little children—happy, hopeful, confident they had been born into a good world—never dreaming that "prominent" men would or could thus deliberately plot and plan to confine them in a worldly hell, all for the sake of dollars with which to line their crooked pockets.

Scheme Considered Diabolical and Wicked

I had heard of such things and I had seen prison graft evidenced in wormy food, weeviled flour and rotten meat; but here I was up against a gigantic scheme more diabolical and wicked and inhuman than any act or collection of acts done by any convict or body of convicts I had ever known.

If such a thing were consummated and the perpetrators got away with it without disgrace or penalty, then I was glad of being in a different class—that of the ex-convict. People might hold me to be besmirched and "different," but I had never deliberately planned wholesale murder for money, nor was I capable of such hellish infamy. If that was what is sometimes called "legitimate graft," then I, and all the men in Sing Sing, belonged in a category of saints.

Osborne inspected the two sites and unqualifiedly recommended Beekman as much the better of the two. His report condemned the Wingdale site.

Another committee of politicians reported just the opposite, stating that there was no water to be had at Beekman and that the Wingdale site was desirable in every way. Yet when the United States government established a large training camp on the Beekman site a few months later water was found in abundance.

Frustrated Politicians Who 'Framed' Osborne

There was no question whatever as to the relative merits of the two sites, and Osborne allied himself with those who were standing and fighting for an honest appropriation and a practical prison. To my mind it was the politicians thus frustrated who later framed up the charges

FRIEND TO HUNT W. W. NUTTING AND PARTY

New Brunswick, N. J., June 12 (A.P.)—Robert W. and J. Seward Johnson, brothers and members of the surgical supply firm of Johnson & Johnson, announced that they will leave this week for Newfoundland, to search for William Washburn Nutting and three companions who have been missing since August 16, 1924, when they sailed from Iceland to cross the Atlantic in a 40-foot sloop.

At Newfoundland, the Johnson brothers will be met by their 150-foot schooner, Zodiac. According to their present plans they will cruise north from Labrador on June 25. The vessel will be manned by a crew of ten, including D. R. Stoneleigh, Yale mineralogist.

With Nutting were Arthur S. Hildebrand, author; John Towdah, marine painter, and a Norwegian amateur skipper. The party sailed from Reykjavik, Iceland, in the sloop Leif Erickson, intending to "follow the trail of the vikings" to Baddeck, N. S. Last Winter, the United States cruiser Trenton made a futile search of northern waters for the missing men.

BLUE RIBBON DOGS TO SHOW AT NORUMBEGA

Ladies' Kennel Association Prizes Attract Elite of Dogdom

The elite of dogdom, terriers, spaniels and many other breeds will illustrate the old adage that every dog has his day, when six hundred thoroughbreds will compete at the twenty-second bench show of the Ladies' Kennel Association tomorrow at Norumbega park.

As usual, the terriers lead the list. Never were so many terriers entered in a Boston show. There are fox terriers, wirehaired Irish terriers, Cairn, Scottish, West Highland White terriers and Sealyhams.

Bayard Warren of Prides Crossing who has exhibited many prize winning terriers, among them the blue ribbon winner Barberry Hill Bootlegger, will be well to the fore with as beautiful an assortment as has ever been shown.

Homer Gage, another exhibitor, whose wirehaired fox terrier Welwyn Barrington Bootlegger is famous, will also have an interesting entry.

Next to the terriers, the shepherd dogs are listed, and entries from Canada and the United States are numerous.

One of the finest specimens of a bull terrier ever seen will be Fairlawn Full o' Fun, a $2,000 beauty from the kennel of Mrs. Louis Lichtenhein of Newtonville. Full o' Fun is a champion and is expected to attract much attention in the ring.

Among prominent exhibitors are George S. Wood, Chestnut Hill, whose kennels need no comment; Bayard Warren, Prides Crossing, president of the Eastern Dog Club; Mrs. Annah Nesbitt, Framingham; Beekman Kennels, Danvers; Dreham Kennels, Wrentham; Elcher Kennels, Hopewell, N. J.; Edmond Kennels, Edmond, R. I.; Homer Gage, Sudbury; Willowbrook Kennels, Jaffrey; Miss Claudia Phelps, Aiken, South Carolina.

With entries by these and other well known dog owners from all parts of the United States and Canada, it is anticipated that the entries will equal anything yet shown at an American bench show.

SOUP, UMBRELLA FIGHT ECHOED IN COURT

Woman Charges Her Neighbor Slandered Her After Trial When Battle Was Aired

Mrs. Lillian Perlman of Commonwealth avenue and Mrs. Ethel Katz of Glenville avenue, Allston, were in court in Brighton on June 2, airing their difficulties. Mrs. Perlman claimed that Mrs. Katz hit her with a can from which the Lithuanian soup had not been strained.

Mrs. Katz maintained for her part that Mrs. Perlman wielded an umbrella in a manner never designed by the manufacturer and in an unladylike fashion, to say the least.

Judge Donnelly continued the case of assault and battery brought by Mrs. Perlman until September 19 on condition that Mrs. Katz leave town for the Summer.

On the way out of court Mrs. Katz gave Mrs. Perlman the laugh twice, like this: "Huh! Huh!"

Mrs. Perlman hurried back into court and breathlessly reported the story to the judge, who fined Mrs. Katz $25 for each "Huh."

Today Mrs. Perlman increased Judge Connolly's ear again, telling him that Mrs. Katz was making slanderous statements about her character. Judge Connolly assigned Special Officer Mann of the Brighton station to make an investigation. The neighbors are waiting for the next round of the soup battle.

SEEK 3 MORE LEADERS IN STOLEN BOND PLOT

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—A general police alarm was broadcast today for the arrest of three other men alleged to have been involved in the gigantic disposal scheme of stolen stocks for which Israel Brinkman, attorney, already is in custody. Brinkman's operations are said by the police to parallel those of "Nicky" Arnstein.

Further investigation of bonds found in the Chelsea Exchange Bank, rented by Brinkman, is said to have revealed that $27,000 worth of the securities were stolen in St. Louis in 1924.

SCOPES SEEKS CONVICTION IN TRIAL

Evolution Law Test Will Fail if High School Teacher Is Acquitted

Dayton, Tenn., June 12.—John T. Scopes will not have any trouble getting a jury here that will find him guilty of teaching evolution in Tennessee.

And that is just what Scopes and his staff of advisers are working for. If he should be acquitted the case would end and there would be no opportunity of testing the law in the higher courts.

This will be the first time in this county that a man went on trial working for conviction. It will be the first time that his attorneys—Clarence Darrow, Dudley Field Malone and Bainbridge Colby—ever tried to convict their own client.

But they do not have to worry about finding a jury that will carry out their wishes. The people of this little town are composed for the most part of strong fundamentalists—men and women who are violently opposed to the theory of evolution.

Three denominations predominate, the Methodists, Baptists and Holy Rollers. They all believe the Bible from cover to cover according to their interpretations and they all interpret the story of creation as recorded in Genesis literally and as contrary to the theory of evolution.

If the Scopes' attorneys see a possibility of acquittal they will have their client plead guilty at the last minute.

The purpose of next month's trial is two-fold—to guide the case into higher courts where the constitutionality of Tennessee's anti-evolution law can be tested and to gain as much publicity as possible.

It was with the latter object in view that Darrow, Malone and Colby were chosen.

People here are beginning to refer to the trial as "Darrow's circus."

CHICAGO TO CONTINUE STUDY OF EVOLUTION

Chicago, June 12 (A. P.).—Chicago schools will continue to study evolution, it was disclosed when a revised list of text books, chosen by a committee of teachers, was announced.

ENGLAND FACES ANTI-SECURITY PACT FIGHT

Baldwin Plan Scored as Menace to Country's "Splendid Isolation"

London, June 12 (I.N.S.)—Conditions multiplied today that Britain is about to undergo an anti-security pact fight that will bear a striking similarity to the anti-league of nations fight the United States witnessed after the Paris peace conference.

The Baldwin government, which negotiated the pact, is definitely worried.

Will a considerable section of the press already deploring the treaty on the ground that it means an end to Britain's "splendid isolation," the Liberals came out into the open today with undisguised opposition.

The Daily Chronicle, organ of ex-Premier Lloyd George, attacks the pact on the ground that England may be drawn into the petty quarrels of Central Europe.

PUPILS COMPEL PRINCIPAL TO SIGN DIPLOMAS

Refuse to Accept Blank Parchment After Failure to Apologize for Strike

St. Albans, Vt., June 12.—J. H. Wright, principal of the Bellows Free Academy, has accepted the white flag insofar as the battle standard he has. Effectively parried since last March, he demanded that pupils at the academy refrain from attending spring dances.

Eight seniors who refused to apologize to the principal after the entire class went on strike as a result of the dance edict, when handed blank diplomas at the graduation exercises, renewed Wright and demanded that he scan the sheepskins.

The trustees of the academy were present when the demands were made. So were the parents of the eight graduates, and in the face of this hostile group the principal capitulated and signed the sheepskins.

The girl who took highest honors in the class and Miss Carolyn A. Billard, president of the senior class, among those who refused to sit on the platform during the commencement exercises.

Boston Smart Set's Interest Claimed by Three Weddings

Miss Dorothy Batchelder was maid of honor for the marriage yesterday of her sister, Miss Eleanor Batchelder and Uriel Haskell Crocker, the ceremonial at mid-afternoon in the Arlington Street Church.

Emmanuel and Arlington Street Churches and Appleton Chapel Scenes of Important Nuptials

Betty Alden

MISS ELLEN BANCROFT DALTON was a bride all in peryenche blue for her marriage yesterday to Henry Daland Chandler in the Lady Chapel of Emmanuel Church at high noon. Her gown of crepe and lace, with cavalier cape, transparent picture hat and shoes of blue were a most becoming and effective departure from the conventional bridal white.

BLUE WAS A very happy selection, indeed, toning as it did with the prevailing Madonna blue of the memorial windows and fittings of the exquisite small chapel, considered by critics one of the most beautiful bits of ecclesiastical architecture in the country.

MARRIAGE VOWS were spoken before a small and very smart company which filled the chapel to overflowing. The Rev. Percy Eakrop and the Rev. Endicott Peabody officiated and Henry P. Dalton gave the bride in marriage. Two small flower girls in white organdie, with bigborn bonnets and baskets of gay yellow and blue flowers, were the sole attendants.

THEY WERE LITTLE Frances Winlock, daughter of Herbert Winlock of the usher squad, and little Susan Dalton, Albert W. Rice of Worcester was best man, and William Pitkin, Charles Lewis Pitkin, W. Power Blodget, Frederick Yodley and Dr. Edward F. W. Hartel, representing Boston, Gotham and Lancaster, were ushers.

GUESTS AT THE bridal went to No. 101 Chestnut street, the home of the bride, for the reception. She is a Vincent Club and Sewing Circle member, her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Chandler of Boston and Beverly Farms. The bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis W. Chandler, have their home in Marlboro street. He is a Harvard, 1906, man, and belongs to the Harvard and Oakley Country Clubs.

AT 3 O'CLOCK yesterday afternoon, the bridal of Miss Eleanor Batchelder, daughter of the George L. Batchelders of Boston and Medford, and Uriel Haskell Crocker brought a large company to the Arlington Street Church, one of Boston's oldest houses of worship.

MASSED CEDARS AND clustered white gladioli, combined with the church's colonial atmosphere of high-backed pews and massive pillars, set off effectively the bridal party. The bride was in rich creme satin with rose point lace, a court train of satin and veil of tulle, and her feminine escort in gay bright moire.

SIX BRIDESMAIDS WORE bright blue, with transparent white horsehair hats sashed with blue. They were the Misses Louise Batchelder, Katharine Crocker, Helen McElwain, Marion Williams, Martha Houser and Charlotte Smith. Miss Dorothy Batchelder, eldest of the daughters, as honor maid, wore deep orchid.

ROBERT T. GANNETT was best man, and George L. Batchelder, Jr., marshalled the effectively his usher squad. They were Russell Dewart and W. Scott Blanchard (both to be Hasty Pudding Club hosts at Harvard's Class Day next Tuesday), Douglas S. Byers, Alexander H. Ladd, Jr., John C. Buchanan and Charles V. Cushman.

ALSO THE YOUTHFUL son of the family, Samuel Lawrence Batchelder, named for his maternal grandfather, the late Colonel Lawrence of Medford, whose large estate and fine old residence in the town by the Mystic always are of such interest to townspeople and strangers alike.

THE BATCHELDERS, mere at here, with two daughters, Miss Dorothy and Miss Louise and the son, Samuel, are sailing soon for a Summer in Europe, their usual playground for the warm season. Mr. Crocker is a Harvard man, 1925, with Hasty Pudding, Delphic and Tennis and Racquet affiliations. His bride's youthful coterie is of the Junior League and the Vincent Club.

OUT IN CAMBRIDGE, in the late afternoon, Miss Mary Isabella (Maysabella) Sauveur became the bride of George Curtis Eaton of St. Louis, in Appleton Chapel, with the Rev. Edward C. Moore of the Harvard Divinity School faculty as the officiating clergyman.

THE BRIDE WORE white satin with old point lace, a tulle veil wreathed in orange blossoms and carried clustered white iris and valley lilies. Mrs. W. J. B. Taylor of hPiladelphia was matron of honor and four Cambridge girls, the Misses Anita S. Ward (bethrothed to Professor Calvert Magruder), Emily Close, Charlotte Kennedy and Grace Helena Bullock were maids.

USHER DUTIES FELL to W. J. R. Taylor of hiladelphia, William Duane of Boston, James K. Dow of North Andover, Cyrus W. Wood of Worcester, Morison R. Lake of Concord and Edward K. Newbegin of Cambridge. Francis G. Eaton, Jr., was best man. The bridegroom's parents are the Francis G. Eatons of St. Louis. His wedding interests his classmates of Harvard, 1923.

THE BRIDAL ALSO IS of wide interest to the many friends, both here and abroad, of the bride's parents. They are Professor Albert Sauveur and Mrs. Sauveur of Cambridge. Professor Sauveur is a member of the Harvard faculty.

NEWEST BISHOP NOTED FOR HIS POPULARITY

Rt. Rev. John Gregory Murray, Who Goes to Portland, Me., Is Holy Cross Graduate

Hartford, Ct., June 12.—Auxiliary Bishop John Gregory Murray, who has been appointed by the Pope as Bishop of Portland, Me., bears the distinction of being the most popular clergyman in Connecticut.

Born in Waterbury, February 26, 1877, he was graduated from Holy Cross in 1897 and from the American College of the University of Louvain, being ordained to the priesthood April 14, 1900.

Returning to America Father Murray was for a time a curate at St. John's Church, New Haven, but in September of 1909, at the age of twenty-three, he was made professor of Latin, Greek and German in St. Thomas' Seminary in Hartford. He stayed there three years, being chosen on October 5, 1903, as chancellor and secretary to the bishop.

His work was so appreciated that when the permanent rectors made their nominations for the successor to the late Bishop Michael Tierney, Father Murray's was one of the three names sent to Rome.

He has taken an active part in civic as well as clerical affairs, and during the war labored indefatigably for the State council of defense. He also worked for the numerous drives conducted by welfare organizations during the war. When named as a director of the State chamber of Commerce in New Haven a few years ago, he was received with cheers from the delegates.

Fr. Murray has been the first auxiliary bishop in the history of the diocese of Connecticut and the first Connecticut born bishop in the diocese.

He was raised to the episcopacy of the church and consecrated titular bishop of Flavius and auxiliary to the bishop of the diocese of Hartford at an impressive ceremony at St. Joseph's Cathedral on April 28, 1920.

Bishop Murray and Mgr. Maurice P. McAuliffe, president of St. Thomas' Seminary, made a three months' tour of continental Europe last Summer and while at Rome had an audience with Pope Pius XI.

MEDFORD FOLK TO PROTEST OIL TANKS

Mass Meeting Called Monday Night on Proposed Site in City Proper

Medford residents are planning an open air mass meeting of protest against the proposal of the Standard Oil Company to erect tanks with a capacity of more than five million gallons of petroleum products almost in the heart of Medford.

The location selected is on Riverside avenue between a boat manufacturing concern and a lumber finishing plant within a stone's throw of Medford square.

It is proposed to erect ten steel tanks with storage capacity of 113,475 barrels each on the property on which the company has secured an option.

Two tanks will be for gasoline, two for furnace oil, two for kerosene and three for lubricating oil.

Although opposition has arisen among neighbors to having the tanks erected within a short distance of their homes, chief opposition is said to come from merchants and business men and owners of property in the vicinity of Medford square.

An impromptu protest mass meeting is being planned, to be held on the proposed site Monday night. Mayor Coolidge has agreed to be present and the aldermen will be asked to attend as well as representatives of the Standard Oil Company to hear what the public has to say and to explain any matters with which the public is not familiar.

B. U. ARTS AND LETTER GIRLS BURN BOOKS

Class day exercises took place at Faulkner Farm in Jamaica Plain today by the College of Practical Arts and Letters of Boston University.

The committee in charge was Olive Garland of Brookline, Dorothy Beckett of Swampscott, Marion Keen of Everett, Mary Farrell of Lynn and Frances McCullough of Newton Centre.

The march of the seniors topped the program. Then came the singing of the class song, and a rhythmic dance by Mary Ann eMehan of Monroe, La. The class will was read by Ruth Lapoin of Brookline.

After that the seniors burned the books which they disliked most as undergraduates. The volumes consumed by flame would make an amazing and variegated list.

Later today the seniors of the School of Religious Education and Social Service will have a class supper at Nantasket. And the alumni of the School of Medeine will have a reunion at the Hotel Brunswick.

This is senior prom night. The seniors of the University School of Education will have their prom at the Copley-Plaza. The seniors of the College of Practical Arts and Letters will give their's at the Hotel Buckminster, while the seniors of the College of Liberal Arts will hold forth at the Copley-Plaza.

Tomorrow sees the end of senior week activities. The university baccalaureate services will be rendered Sunday and commencement exercises on Monday.

BOSTON FRIENDLY TOWN, REVUE STAR DECLARES

"Boston is the friendliest city in the United States," declares Jimmy Cooper, star and producer of the negro revue, "Hot Feet," at Gordon's Olympia this week. "Throughout the country Boston is known as a cold, unfriendly city, said the stage star, "but this is untrue. During the past few years I have had the pleasure of appearing in this city several times and I have always found Bostonians exceptionally friendly, cordial and hospitable. Where the legend concerning Boston 'coldness' originated is hard to understand."

Quincy has entered upon another big day in her tercentenary celebration in an auspicious manner.

With a spectacular display of fireworks and a military band concert on the program for tonight, in place of the pageant that has featured the past three nights of the celebration, visitors from all sections of the State are expected to throng the city.

In addition to the program tonight, there will be other interesting events during the afternoon.

The first event today will be the official unveiling and dedication of a 17-ton ball of polished granite manufactured as a symbol of Quincy's chief industry.

This function will start at four o'clock in the afternoon, on the lawn of City Hall, when Mayor Perley E. Harbour accepts the monument in behalf of the city from President Joseph Walker of the Manufacturers' Association.

Miss Maxine Lonier Swingle, whose father furnished the granite, will unveil the stone sphere, after which the Elks' band will play and then march to Merrymount Park, where it will give a concert until six o'clock.

ASKS $300,000 FOR SELLING BIG SLATER MILLS

Real Estate Dealer Sues the Former Owners of Webster Woolen Plants

The huge commission of $300,000 for the sale of the South Village Woolen Mills in Webster is sought in a suit filed in Suffolk Superior Court by John J. Connelly, real estate dealer, against S. Slater & Sons, Inc.

According to the allegations, formal demands for payment of the commission have been made to H. N. Slater, general manager of the plant, but have been refused.

The realty dealer declares he sold the mills in July, 1923, to the American Woolen Company, for approximately $3,000,000. The sale, according to Connelly, was made with the knowledge and authorization of Jacob Brown, president, and Spaulding Bartlett, treasurer of the Slater concern.

Founded by Samuel Slater, "father of the textile industry in America," the South Mill is the largest textile plant in town and employs 600 workers.

BRITISH RUBBER MONOPOLY HIT BY U. S.

Standardization of Tires Agreed Upon by Manufacturers' Conference

Akron, O., June 12 (A.P.)—Definite steps to break the British monopoly on crude rubber, which has resulted in boosting the price of tires, was taken today by the Rubber Association of America, Inc. Action looking to some immediate temporary relief was included in the program agreed upon and the foundation for permanent relief is the general plan.

In consideration of all rubber producers, especially balloon tire concerns, increasing taking under for placing plans as temporary relief measures, and investment of American capital in Dutch rubber growers are a permanent relief is the general plan.

Following a meeting of the association, which includes most of the largest rubber manufacturers in this continent, the following statement was issued:

"The seriousness of the situation represented by the prevailing high price of crude rubber, and the determination on the part of the rubber goods manufacturing industry to do everything possible to protect the interests of the American consuming public was indicated by the fact that the directors of the Rubber Association of America, Inc., met in Akron, to discuss remedial measures.

"Definite action was taken looking to the reduction of excessive inventories now being carried by manufacturers and dealers; first, by substantial reduction in the number of types and sizes of tires, footwear and mechanical goods required, by the abandonment of all introdu-mable balloon tire sizes; third, the elimination of all second quality lines of tires; fourth, postponing for five months submission of orders for during during no shipments on such orders to be made before 1926.

"The art of reclaiming rubber having been greatly advanced through improvement in quality, commercial use wider are, and as an annual quantity in excess of two million pounds monthly will be available within the next sixty days, and as plans for larger reclaiming extensions are under way, it is believed that the present distressing situation will shortly be relieved."

CURLEY GREAT AD FOR KLAN, SAYS KLEAGLE

A meeting of the Ku Klux Klan will take place in Boston sometime next week, despite all efforts Mayor Curley and other city officials to prevent the gathering, according to C. U. Lewis, Klan organizer, who has been in the Hub for some time.

In addition, according to Lewis, there will be a Flag Day Klan meeting either to or near Boston on Sunday.

The organizer, who is known as a Klan Kleagle, declared today that he was well pleased with Mayor Curley's efforts to prevent the Klan meeting in the South End, Wednesday night.

"Great advertising for us. It has increased the number of applications for membership," declared Lewis. "We're certainly going to have that meeting next week."

MAYOR HURLS CHALLENGE.

"I want to say further," he continued, "that even the city officials will be admitted to that meeting, provided they come as private citizens and not as public officials. They must also promise that they will make no effort to close the hall on a mere technicality.

"But if they refuse to promise to refrain from taking summary action, we will not let them pass. They will not be allowed to put one step into the building unless they are armed with a search warrant."

In reply to the Mayor Curley said:

"As the Mayor of Boston, in the interest of the public peace, the welfare of city and in defence of law, order and the preservation of Americanism I will endeavor to squelch the Ku Klux Klansmen."

"My answer, and that of the city I am Mayor of, will be given in words that cannot be misunderstood on June 17th, the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill."

PEABODY EXCEEDS LEGION ENDOWMENT FUND QUOTA

Peabody, June 12.—The Peabody Citizen's committee in charge of the drive for the American Legion endowment fund has announced that the quota of $2,500 has been exceeded by more than $100. The local Legion post is proud of the work of the committee headed by Judge Daniel C. Manning, chairman; Elias Hornbrooker, secretary; Harry E. Trask, treasurer, and Mayor Robert A. Bakeman, chairman of the executive committee. These executives organized and within two weeks had sub-committees out on the job and the local quota was oversubscribed.

THE BEAST MEN OF AUSTRALIA.—They eat snakes and their own babies. Full details in the next Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Tech Frolickers

Here they are in all the glory of their fun-making regalia—veterans of Tech of other days. The serious-looking top photo is of G. L. Gilmore, president of the Alumni Association of 1920. In the circle is T. M. Lathrop, of Chicago. At the lower left corner is Frank A. Bourne, secretary, class of '96, while the man in the convict garb is J. B. Neil, class of 1915. They were caught making merry at Fort Warren today.

2,000 OLD TECH GRADS HAVE OUTING

Two thousand graduates of Massachusetts Institute of Technology with their wives, daughters, sweethearts and sisters spent the day at Fort Warren as the second event of the 1925 all-Technology reunion.

After arriving at the island, everyone was given an opportunity to inspect the fortifications, following which a shore luncheon was served.

The feature of the day was the expose of "Prof. X. Y. Zizzerer," a mysterious inventor and alleged graduate of Tech, about whom and his invention there has been considerable curiosity.

Seated in the natural amphitheatre at Fort Warren the classes of 1868 to 1925 watched with much enjoyment the rush for the "Professor" whose theory of the atom and its demonstration added much to the gayety of the occasion.

The Tech band played and the freshmen acted as ushers and aids, while banners, class seals, class regalia and flags made the spectacle colorful.

Very much in evidence was G. L. Gilmore of the class of 1896, who wore his original freshman cap. He was president of the alumni association last year, and is the present secretary.

The class of 1913 was awarded the prize goat, which was paraded by A. P. Smith and William A. Bryant.

Frank A. Bourne and T. M. Lathrop represented the class of 1895. Miss Connie Lathrop, who accompanied her father and sought him with a megaphone at frequent intervals, attracted considerable attention, as did Claire Enebuske and her brother of 1915 and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Neal of the same class.

'Politician' Sends $3 to Conscience Fund of City

A $3 contribution to the municipal "conscience fund" has been received at the office of the city treasurer. It came in an envelope postmarked Boston. The money was folded in an envelope upon which was marked the word "Politician," so treasury attaches guessed the money might have come from some ex-office holder who discovered at this late day that $3 belonging to taxpayers had somehow found its way into his pocket, purely by mistake.

THE KATZENJAMMER KIDS.—Make a strawberry festival merry. See the 8-page color comic section of the next Boston Sunday Advertiser.

FRENCH SEIZE 2 GERMAN SHIPS

El Araish, Spanish Morocco, June 12 (A.P.).—A dispatch received here from Tiet, general headquarters of the French, says a French torpedo boat seized two German ships, the Leipsic and Dortmund, off Agadir, the southernmost port of Morocco on the Atlantic Ocean, and took them to Mogador to make an examination of their cargoes.

Auto Fractures Skull

Edward H. Korb, fifty-five, No. 94 Bartlett street, was struck and knocked down by an automobile operated by Daniel Mailing, No. 18 Freeman street, Wollaston, at Atlantic avenue and Fleet street, North End, today. He was removed to Haymarket Relief Hospital. He has a fractured skull and his condition is in the danger list.

HONOLULU IN TOUCH WITH PARIS OVER RADIO

Washington, June 12—Remarkable records of radio reception have been made during the experimental work of Lieutenant P. H. Nuhall, U. S. N. R. F. radio manager of the American Radio Relay League, now on duty with the Pacific fleet at Honolulu, touching on short wave radio work for the navy. Lieutenant Nuhall has been associated with over one hundred amateurs in all corners of the country, and has been heard with his 40 and 54 metres sending sets as far from Honolulu as Paris.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

SEVERAL dentists are touring the country districts in motor cars and farmers can now have their teeth pulled by automobile.

THE dentist preps your jaw to with a jack and takes your tooth out with the crank.

HE takes your temperature by using the motometer for a thermometer.

IF you prefer to take gas, he starts the engine running and lets you inhale the fumes from the exhaust.

HE doesn't use anaesthetic, but if you want to be thoroughly unconscious he'll gladly run over you with the car.

EVERY farmer should allow his wife to have a couple of teeth extracted so that the people on the next farm can see how good you are to her.

OF course there's no use in being extravagant and letting her have all her teeth taken out.

BUT by hiring the dentist to pull three or four of her molares it will show the neighbors that you let her have a few luxuries once in a while.

THIS will cost you a couple of dollars but it pays to put on the "Dog" now and then.

IF your wife doesn't have a tooth pulled every so often, the people next door will think you're living within your means.

HE may have to tow you to the next town, but the tooth will eventually lose.

NO bridgework can ever make a fool out of an automobile.

EVEN if your teeth are all right it's best to have them pulled out anyway because these traveling dentists may not be back in your locality for five or six months.

TEETH are painful, but they can't bother you if you haven't got any.

IT'S nice to have some dental work done even if it's just to show off to the neighbors.

EVERY farmer should allow his wife to have a couple of teeth extracted so that the people on the next farm can see how good you are to her.

IF you prefer to take gas, he starts the engine running and lets you inhale the fumes from the exhaust.

HE doesn't use anaesthetic, but if you want to be thoroughly unconscious he'll gladly run over you with the car.

THEN he'll have all your dental work finished by the time you "come to."

IF you happen to have a tooth which is hard to pull, he fastens a rope on to it and tows it out.

HEREDITY AND GOOD SENSE

By Lucy Lowell

DID the father of the nine-year-old boy who stole ninety dollars' worth of jewelry from the home of a friend and then confessed, do the right thing by the boy when he marched him to the police station and ordered his arrest?

Is it what You would have done if the little offender had been YOUR son?

I asked this question a week or two ago. Most of you, it seems, feel that the father was taking out his anger and humiliation upon his son instead of selling in the best interests of the boy. Here is a letter from a Chicago mother:

"Dear Dorothy Lowell:

"I think the father of the boy who took the jewelry showed himself a very inconsistent father. If he had been SIT sun I'd have been happy to think he had the manly courage to confess voluntarily. Surely he showed strength of character in doing so and confidence in his father.

"The father, who has utterly failed his boy when he needed him most, never again will gain his confidence. His failure has left a mark on his son for life.

"Being a parent is a big job that requires a great deal of patience, an ever listening ear, a good deal of tact, the will to set a good example and the ability to give all the love in us. Too often we parents don't realize that our children have eyes to use—and their own thoughts. When they do wrong we lose our tempers and punish them, or, as in this father did, and he others punish them for us. We command them to carry out our wishes when their minds are not enough developed to grasp the pleas back of our commands.

"We, instead, don't we reason with them and show them why our way is best? When they come to us with the truth, why don't we reward them by respecting their confidence?

"I believe that most of the delinquency of children is caused by the failure of parents to understand childhood. Children really are the reflection of the character of their parents. A MOTHER."

What a startling idea—that a child is the reflection of its parents' character! Do YOU believe that it's true?

Think of the children you know—think of YOUR children—are their fits of temper, selfishness, sweetness, lawlessness or regard for others, copies of those identical traits in yourself?

Don't blame it on blind and inexcusable heredity. Science is fast eliminating that theory—that weak, spined excuse for inefficiency and wrongdoing of both parents and children.

BEDTIME STORY

Broadcast Daily at 5:30 p. m. Through Station WNAC

THE BIRTH OF PERSEUS

By Foxy Grandpa

"FOXY GRANDPA, there must be a lot of pennies in that machine," said Bobby, as he pulled out a small cake of chocolate from the slot machine in the station where we were waiting.

"Pennies it was gold." I chuckled, "and suppose like that pile of gold coins in ancient Greece—"

But I didn't have to finish anything about the coins at that moment. For Bobby, as usual, had asked me to tell him the whole story as the word Greece fell from my lips. So I did. And this is what I told him.

"Once upon a time, in Argos, in Greece, there lived a king who sat upon a throne with worried expression on his face.

"Now this king had reason to worry. Because it had been foretold that he would be slain by his grandson. But finally he thought of a scheme. He built a great, high tower of brass and in this he imprisoned his beautiful daughter Danae.

"Poor Danae led a wretched life there in that great tower without windows. She had only her own image to see in the mirror and her own voice to hear, when she sang.

"This continued for years. The cowardly king thought all was well and that nothing could happen to him.

"But one day, while Danae was sitting there in her prison, suddenly a gold coin dropped at her feet. She looked up quickly and down fell another one from a tiny chink in the ceiling—just like your old machine. More and more fell and soon before her was a great pile of gold.

"Danae was stunned, but when a beautiful man rose from the golden pile she was more surprised. For he said:

"I am Jupiter and I have chosen you for my earthly bride.

"Danae was very happy and after a while the king, her father, was brought news that a child was crying in the tower.

"Up the steep staircase leading to the highest room in the tower he flew and burst into the room. There sat his daughter, cooing over her baby son which had been born shortly before.

"Now, the king was wild. Being a king he could not put his daughter and son to death, so what did that cruel monarch do but put his daughter and her little son into a small boat and put them adrift on the sea.

"They were saved by a fisher-man.

"Who was this stately young woman with the regal bearing, he wondered. But Danae said nothing. All that she said was that her name was Danae and that her son's name was Perseus.

"Oh!" gasped Bobby. "Tell me some more about Perseus."

"That will have to wait for another day, Bobby. We must take our train now. There is so much to tell about him."

"That's good," said Bobby, chewing his chocolate. Then, with a broad grin on his face, the little fellow followed me into the train.

MRS. CHATTER AT THE CLUB

By Mary Steele

"WHAT is the subject of the meeting this time?—Books, oh, I see. Well, Mr. Chatter says I'm just like a Japanese. We both begin reading a book on the last page. He says that the only difference is that I never get any further. Isn't he a scream?

"They're talking about that new novel 'Crimson Paint.' Reminds me of yesterday. I went down town to get some red paint to paint my bridge table, and when I asked the storekeeper where I could find it he sent me to the cosmetic department. I was perfectly furious.

"The next book is 'The Blue Heron.' I bought that the other day because it has such a lovely cover. The binding just exactly matches the blue scarf on my living room table.

"How reminds me of Mrs. Jones' new dress. Have you seen it. No, well wait till you hear. It's blue roses on red chiffon. She of all people with her figure to wear such a thing. Mr. Chatter said that all she had to do for an alarm clock was to hang it on the foot of her bed, and it was so loud it would wake her up the next morning. Isn't he a scream?

"How do you do, Mrs. Jones? You are the very picture of health. As I was just saying only this morning, I do believe it's better to have one's health, even though it does mean giving up one's figure completely.

"That's Mrs. Silence over there. She belongs to the same bridge club that I do, but she won't very popular. She'd rather play cards than talk.

"Mr. Silence is her fourth husband, and he's old enough to be her father. Her other husbands were old, too. Mr. Chatter calls her an 'antique collector.' Isn't he a scream?

"I always have adored antique shops. Always wanted to run one, but Mr. Chatter said all that I know about an antique shop was that it was a place where they sold Limoges chinese. Of course, I know they sell other things, too, but isn't he simply too funny for words?"

LISTEN, WORLD!

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

By Elsie Robinson

HANNAH wants to know how to get along with her husband. Hannah has been married for five months, and the grit on the honeymoon is pretty badly chipped.

She still loves Burton very, very much, but oh how he differed from what she thought he'd be. Even more dreamed, for instance, that a man could be so untidy.

Wife with a widowed mother and no invalid aunt doesn't prepare you much for masculine untidiness. Coat thrown on the piano, cigarette ashes on the upholstery, a nasty old fish the master parked on her best tailor suit cushion, a horrid liver of mixing mush razor and dried suds in the bathroom. Talk about never realized men were so dirty!

Now in that tell. If it were just nothing on after him she could stand it. Hannah is dee vown an finger tidy, like a friend Peg Mak can't pick up after himself.

But he's so IMPOSSIBLE in other ways. Stubborn — there NEVER was such another — as stiff as a poker. Obstinate — as mule. Argumentative — as a lawyer. And BITTER — interrupts her without apologizing — laughs at her when she's serious, hurts her feelings DREADFULLY.

Reads the paper at breakfast, and all she can get out of him is a grunt. Cracks the silliest jokes with that absent, foolish woman across the hall, whom fortunate if she's a day, and tries to act as if she was eighteen.

Gets so mad if she's five minutes late for an appointment, and yet can't understand why she should be put out when he keeps dinner waiting half an hour until everything is cold and absolutely ruined.

I could go on for columns telling you of Burton's trying ways, but if you're a married lady you probably know all of them yourself. And now Hannah wants to know how she's going to get along with her husband. How is she going to stand him for all the years and years they will live together.

How will you learn to get along with Burton, Hannah? That's easy —THEY LEARN TO GET ALONG WITH YOURSELF.

Nine out of ten of our marriages are wrecked, not because we can't get along with the other fellow, but because we can't get along with ourselves.

We've never acquired sufficient good nature, philosophy, self-restraint and tolerance within ourselves to enable us to meet the inevitable friction of married life.

Our spirits are covered with sensitive prickers which cause us constant irritation whenever they're jarred. Do we try to eliminate these prickers? No, indeed! We resent that. Oh, Wonderful One whom we have married will avoid having them.

Instead we married 'em for. Didn't they promise to keep us happy all the time? Sure, they did. And if they bore us we they said. Any subject won't let us be bored. Such is our simple, romantic theory of marital responsibility.

And so we are married—and live surprised and pained sore after! For, behold, our sensitive little prickers Annoy Protected!

Within a very short time we're being annoyed and inconvenienced just as much as we would have been in the office. In fact, our ideal Mate is exactly as rough on our delicate feelings as any boorish boss we've had. Oh, home perfect is the end of Romance!

No, it isn't the end of Romance—but it should be the beginning of a solid accumulation of common sense. There's no reason on earth why married should be expected to be a Life Insurance Against Inconvenience.

There's no reason why any human should exert super-human effort to keep another human from annoyance. Nor should we need to learn elaborate codes whereby we may "get along" with each other.

Tact and diplomacy provide temporary relief against jarring contact, but they will hardly withstand the terrific test of marital intimacy. We must have a better protection than that. We must get to the root of the trouble. The root of the trouble is within ourselves and that's where the cream set begin.

WE CAN LEARN TO GET ALONG WITH MOST ANYONE ON EARTH, REGARDLESS OF PERSONAL HABITS, IF WE LEARN TO GET ALONG WITH OURSELVES. We must erect controls within ourselves which will keep the petty irritations of life from intruding on our inner reserve.

Fortify ourselves with humor and sympathy, tolerance and independence. Keep annoyances outside by filling ourselves as full of wise, helpful resources that there is no room for the annoyances to get in.

Conquer circumstances instead letting them conquer us. Know ourselves ischered within the walls of our own spirits.

Flowers the trick of happy marriage, Hannah. Learn that trick—Burton's ashes and Burton's grin will never be able to spell for you—overmark. 1925, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.

By B. C. Forbes

It isn't good for business any more than for the rest of us to get our own way always. Is there not danger that the latest Supreme Court decision against the railroad rate-boost may lead to disastrous consequences?

The country needs and the market floor people often bring continued by lower courts have had their premises sanctioned. It is time to have decisions in accordance therewith. After reading about the methods rigidly followed by the crooked Attorney-General, I would not have been astonished had somebody told me that he will go higher," says Mendy. "The economic grounds are that capital activities, also trade activity, are more powerful than the forces alone. The trade season is that the large orders to be received by manufacturing concerns in August or September should be stimulating, and the statement reason is that the market usually reaches its high peaks in the fall.

"Readers, whether long or short seem, should evidently be held until there is some actual diminution in the volume of capital regardless of one tentative date at which such diminution or the higher peak in bond prices may be expected.

"There ought to be a moderate increase during the next few months in the orders booked by automobile and car companies."

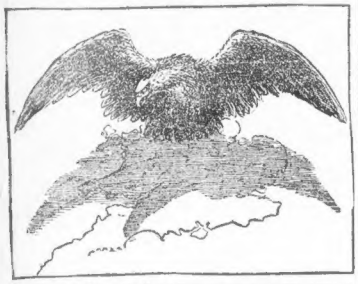
Three Pictures From Three English Magazines

The English Are at Least Thinking

The London Daily Express prints under this picture "Safety First," and John Bull, in great excitement, is saying: "If you will sleep in the open, you poor idiot, for goodness sake get a mosquito net."

Great Britain has at least a hundred good flying machines for every one that the United States has, and fifty to a hundred experienced fliers for every ONE we have ready for flying.

But the British WORRY, and the three pictures printed



This is from a Welsh paper, the Cardiff Evening Express. The German eagle swooping down on the British island is saying, "Ha! The same old unprepared England."

here show it. The way to get rid of troubles and to replace danger with safety is TO WORRY, THINK AND PLAN.

England doesn't EXPECT war with France, but she knows that France, with her overwhelming fleet of four thousand fighting flying machines, could destroy every city of importance in Great Britain twenty-four hours after declaring war.

The British have ruled the old-fashioned ocean made of waters for years. They don't like to see France mistress of the new and more important ocean, THE AIR.

Over here we are told by General Mitchell and others

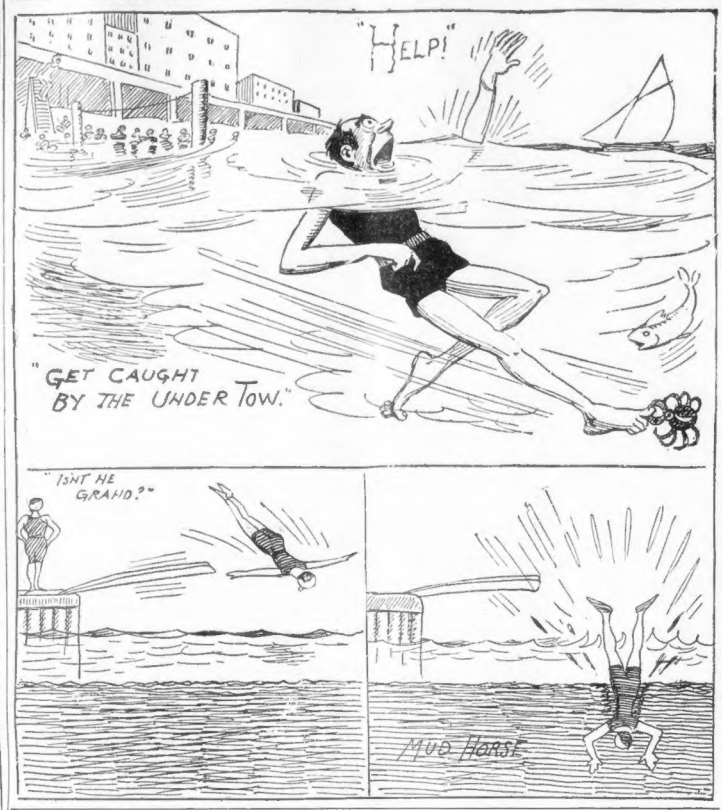
How Not to Grow Old -:- -:- By T. E. Powers



MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By Helen Rowland

VERILY, verily, my Daughter, unto her that would win in the game of hearts, all life must be a continuous COMEDY!

For, lo, the fear of a woman's life is that she may be taken lightly; but the fear in a man's heart is that he may be taken seriously.

Then, I charge thee, if thou wouldst be found "taking" in his eyes, take no man seriously. For, only when he is ailing and full of pain and suffering, doth any man desire to be considered with gravity.

Helen Rowland

Go to. All the days of his bachelorhood, doth a man dwell in dread and trembling lest his little ways and his under nothings be "misinterpreted." And, she who pretends NOT to believe him, is the only woman who "understandeth" him.

He followeth joyfully after a Columbine, who seeketh only to play with him; but from a Portia, with wit and judgment and an argument, he fleeth in affright.

He weareth the cap and bells in the hope that no woman will take him seriously; and is filled with terror at the vision of himself in the sober Garb of an husband.

He keepeth his emotions insulated and weareth a quarantine placard upon the door of his heart; and any woman who seeketh to enter therein, doeth so at her OWN RISK!

He perceiveth not why a damsel should find "serious" a little passing romance, which he found only "diverting"; and she that showeth eagerness in a love-affair is a loser from the start.

But she that pretendeth to "play the game," and taketh him only as a playmate and pastime, shall take him by SURPRISE!

Yea, verily, she that would take any man for life, must take him OFF his guard!

For, every man seeketh to dodge life's responsibilities, as he would shun the influenza or a serious play; and loseth only for the LAUGH upon the Bill of Fate!

And, no man would take even his marriage seriously, if his wife would permit him to FORGET it.

Go to. In High Olympus, Juno, the serious, was betrayed; Minerva, the intelligent, was an old maid; Venus, the ardent, married a "poor catch"; but Psyche, the silly, was BELOVED!

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis.

SHINING in the meadows, on the Bennet's wing, blooming in the gardens, joy has come with Spring. Joyous yellow daisies greet the dawn's pale rose, shining chains of gladness fragrant hours discloses. So men love the Springtime with its fresh perfume, with its nesting robins, with its wealth of bloom, with its rosy promise of the fruits to be, with its budding beauty on each twig and tree. Yet, when Summer passes and this wealth is spent, when the fields of Autumn slumber, well-content, or in Winter gardens, down the snow-robed lanes not one songbird ventures, not one flower remains, still like seeds that slumber far below the sod, joy is deeply hidden under snow and cold. Joy is on the snowflake, as on Bennet's wings, through each season waiting at the heart of things.

THE HELPING HAND

Very Little to Eat

Helping Hand Editor:

I am asking if you could get a little help for me. I have two children, girl three and baby a month old. My husband is not working at all; I try to work a little, but it only pays my rent. I would like some clothes for the little girl and a carriage for the baby. I would be thankful to get these things and some baby clothes. After I work all day I have only a little bread to eat. I will take anything.

MRS. G. P. 1.

Wants Baby Things

Helping Hand Editor:

I am the mother of five children, boy 12, girls 14, 10, 8 and sixteen months. They need clothing badly. Also expect the stork soon and would be thankful for some infant's clothes, baby's crib or bassinette. My husband has just started to work on small pay after being ill a long time.

MRS. E. F.

Children Want Food

Helping Hand Editor:

I would appreciate some food for the children. I was working out by the day in a few places a week and could not work this week as I got another breakdown and the money I made had to go for rent, as I am getting ordered out on account of being behind in it. The children are in poor condition for clothes. Girl 8, boys 10 and 6. Girl wears size 11 shoe, boys 13 and 5.

L. E.

Other Appeals

Mrs. E. W. writes husband is ill and needs treatment and she would like to go to work to help out, but must have someone to look after the children. To an elderly woman she would give a good home in exchange for this service.

Mrs. R. H. L. whose husband has been in the hospital and unable to help her, would appreciate some infants' clothing. Expects the stork in July.

George S., 13, has been out of work and hasn't a decent suit to wear. Would appreciate one, size 30, shirts 14½, shoes 6½ and some Summer underwear. Six children in the family, father making small wages.

Mrs. T. A. would like some worn blankets and sheets. Expects the stork in the Fall and would be thankful for anything. Is mother of nine.

Mrs. A. W. M. would like to adopt a little girl of American parentage, 6 or 7 years of age. Has no children and longs for the companionship of a little girl.

Mrs. C. I. would like a carpet or art square.

Mrs. Annie B. writes husband has not worked for some time and she would appreciate clothing for boys 10 and 8, girls 6 to 2. Can make over anything.

Mrs. F. B. R. would like to take a little girl over 5 to board. Would treat as her own. Would charge very little.

Mrs. R. M. T., Lynn, thanks the kind readers who so kindly sent her the elastic stocking. It was just what she wanted.

ONCE-OVERS

WHEN YOU GAIN HAPPINESS BY FOLLOWING A GENEROUS IMPULSE

At times you have an impulse to do a good turn for some unfortunate person.

If you act immediately upon this mental suggestion you are happy in carrying it through.

But if you stop to consider that it may cost you money and time or effort, which might interfere with the things you wish personally to do, the desire in your heart is chilled.

So you go through life doing very little for others outside your own family.

Always allowing your good impulses to be chilled, aren't you?

Leading a selfish life when you might be liberal and kind.

In your past life you know of instances when others were kind to you and the memory warms your heart even now.

There is very little recollection of joy and happiness which you have left in the heart of others.

But it is not too late to start.

GOOD THING TO GROW UP WITH BOOKS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THERE are not many good books in the world.

As a man gets older his books slough off and his library grows smaller. At last he has very little left but his books of reference.

Nowadays the making of books is easy and almost every person who has achieved success in any line, or thinks he has, will have no difficulty in compiling his memoirs or his theories into a volume.

Books emerge from the press of the civilized world, hundreds of them daily. It is useless to attempt to keep up with the latest reading.

As one travels through the sea of literature he finds it very much like traveling through a foreign country. I once went down the Rhine and saw from the town of Bingen the statue of Germania in the distance. We looked at it, but did not think it worth while to visit it. I remember a seasoned traveler told me that I had missed the greatest view in Europe by not going up to see the statue of Germania.

In this way you will always find someone who has seen something he thinks remarkable abroad, and if you have not seen the same does not think you have seen the country at all.

When people ask you if you have read this, that or the other volume, you can rarely say yes. In fact with a few exceptions the different books seem to be read by different sets of people.

The exceptions to this are the old classics, which are universal in their appeal. Time is the best critic, and a book that has lived twenty or a hundred years and is still popular is a book you ought to know and to read for it evidently contains something of permanent human appeal.

How many there are who are anxious to know about the latest books, but whose Goethe and Dante and Homer and Schiller and Shakespeare are still undiscovered!

It will do every young person good to go back to Hawthorne and Washington Irving and Dickens, to say nothing of foreign authors, and become acquainted with the characters. These books have lived for a long while and contain an element of education that is not in the modern volumes.

It is a good thing to grow up with books, to have them marked with a pencil and noted with our own hand, to have them full of ideas whose meanings have been explained to you with the progress of the years.

Whoever has a dozen or so of these books and refers to them again and again is indeed fortunate. For education consists not in knowing a great many books, but in knowing a few of them very well.

ANCIENT HISTORY AS TOLD IN MOSAIC

By Garrett P. Serviss,
Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

PROF. FLORIAN CAJORI, the historian of mathematics, describes in a letter to Science a picture in mosaic recently brought to public notice in Germany, and said to have been found in the buried city of Herculaneum, which represents the killing of Archimedes by a Roman soldier after the capture of Syracuse by Marcellus, in the year 212 B. C.

Such a story as that of Archimedes occasionally serves as a corrective for the state of mind into which almost any of us may fall, when all the really great achievements of man seem to belong to our own time.

It took Marcellus—who had been the first general to show that Hannibal could be beaten—two years, aided by a Roman fleet and army, to capture Syracuse, although, says the Roman historian Livy, he would have taken it with the first rush, but for the fact that there was in Syracuse at that time one man, named Archimedes, "without a rival as a spectator of the stars of heaven, and even more wonderful as an inventor and constructor of engines and works of war, with which, as easily as playing, he overthrew in a moment the mightiest machines of the enemy."

Read all of that story, in its compact Latin, indestructible as a granite monument, in Livy's Twenty-fourth Book, Chapter XXXIV, and Twenty-fifth Book, Chapter XXXIII, and following:

After Archimedes had beaten off and crushed the enemy—ship and soldiers alike—for two long years, a foreign traitor in Syracuse at last introduced the Roman soldiers inside the walls by night, and the customary massacre began. Then Livy again:

"Admidst all the dreadful deeds inspired by angry passions and the desire for booty, it is said that Archimedes, intent, despite the tumult and terror, upon the figures that he had drawn in the sand, was slain by a soldier who did not know who he was. Unterritus formis quas in pulvere descripserat, ab ignaro, milite quis esset interfectum."

Marcellus buried him with honor and paid complimentary attentions to his surviving relations.

Nearly two hundred years later Cicero, when Roman governor of Sicily, discovered the tomb of Archimedes overgrown with briers, but still surmounted with the sphere inscribed in a cylinder, which it had been the great philosophor's wish to have placed over his grave.

It was not his victorious engines of war that he deemed to be his true title to remembrance, but one of his mathematical discoveries.

Through all the succeeding centuries artists have made many ideal representations of the death of Archimedes. Most of them are purely imaginary in their details and completely contradictory.

Three English Pictures

who know that we are utterly unprepared, that the number of flying machines that the Japanese own and are rapidly building, brought close to our shores in great freight ships, or coming under their own power, could destroy our great cities on the Pacific coast and kill thousands. We TALK a little, we appoint "investigating committees" and we DO—NOTHING.

The picture from the London Evening News, showing two old gentlemen standing at the gates as guardians, one with an old-fashioned bow, the other with an arrow, "ready for all-comers," is also a wonderfully exact picture of the United States. We are just as well prepared, should modern war break out, with our out-of-date battleships and our childishly inefficient air force as we should be if we had nothing but bows and arrows left over from the Indians, to protect us.

If Great Britain worries with an air fleet constantly increasing, an entirely separate department devoted to flying, with its own independent staff, and constantly increasing appropriations for more flying machines, what should we do in this country? Worrying ought to be our national occupation.

You should not waste your time; on the contrary, you would render service to your country, if you would take the trouble to address a letter to your Congressman, the two Senators from your State and to the President asking politely this question:

"WHEN will the United States have an air fleet capable of defending it, in case of war?"

And WHAT, if anything, does the United States intend to do, through the government, about developing the flying machine, which is an American invention?
